

Honda Racing RedMoto World Enduro Team - 2020 movie

The 2020 season should have started on March 1st. Unfortunately, in the same period the Covid-19 emergency strongly affected all Europe, stopping not only the sport, but also entire countries like Italy -headquarter of the team-, one of the most affected by the Coronavirus outbreak.

It's a real emergency and situation is really tough, but the priority now goes to everyone's health. The Team is ready to face the new season and is waiting for calendar updates, confident that both FIM and the organizers will try to give life to a World Championship of high level in every way by changing the dates.

Awaiting the start of the races, Honda Racing RedMoto World Enduro Team is pleased to present the 2020 line-up with a movie. There are many new features as the technical level of the Honda-RedMoto 2020 bikes and the technical apparel of the riders.

The new team line-up sees the E1 vice-champion Thomas Oldrati for the third consecutive year and the new entries Daniel McCanney and Roni Kytonen.

An international team, engaged in three different classes, aiming to the highest step of the podium. Thomas Oldrati is ready to face the season in the E1 class after a hard training in southern Spain and Sardinia. The English Daniel McCanney will debut in the Enduro 2 class with the CRF 450RX Enduro aiming to the top three, while the young Roni Kytonen will race in the Junior class with the CRF 250RX Enduro.

Matteo Boffelli

Team Manager

"Since February 20th everything is ready to kick off, but this pandemic has stopped the World. Now the priority is to protect everyone's health by staying home. Once the situation will be better, we will be ready to start the competitions with even more enthusiasm! The riders have worked very well and we have all the credentials to be competitive. Our target is always high and we'll try to be at the top of each class. As in 2019, in addition to our three riders, we have reconfirmed Antoine Meo as our ambassador: he'll be the reference for classic races and the French market, as well as an excellent advisor for our riders".

Thomas Oldrati #22

Honda CRF 250RX Enduro

"I'm ready to face this season aware that I have worked well during the winter both in terms of athletic preparation with my new trainer Andrea Balboni and on the bike with our technical manager Diego Sonzogni. In the tests we have found excellent solutions and we have all the right credentials to do well. I'm keeping on my training at home, waiting this tough moment will come to the end".

Daniel McCanney #43

Honda CRF 450RX Enduro

"I have always dreamed of riding a Honda. The goal of each rider is to win: I'll give my best in a really hard fought Enduro 2 class. I have worked hard with the team, finding the right setting for my racing style: all the technicians have a lot of experience and I'm getting more and more feeling with the bike day by day. The current situation does not allow us to ride motorcycles and this penalizes me as Honda is a news for me, but I'm confident to get back on track soon".

Roni Kytonen #91

Honda CRF 250RX Enduro

"It's an honour to be part of an official team. I've finished the compulsory military in Finland and now I'll be in Italy for long. Training and test have been very interesting: every day we find different weather conditions and so we did a good job. In Finland the situation is quite stable, but we must not lower our guard: now the priority goes to everyone's health. When the time will come, we'll be ready to start".
